DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

2. Claims 7-11 and 13-15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claim 7 appears to be misdescriptive since the value of reference voltage VREF is shown in figure 3 to be independent from the circuit. In other words, VREF can be pre-set a certain level and it requires no means related to the circuit for maintain at any particular level.

Claims 9-11 appears to be incomplete since a circuit, comprising a comparator and a pull down transistor configured as recited, are not capable of changing the pulse width and duty cycle of the output signal; and chopping and removing portions of the output signal below the reference voltage.

Limitation “maintained at approximately a midline voltage between the positive and negative voltage peaks of the output” (emphasis added) of claim 13 appears to be misdescriptive since the output signal can not drop below the reference voltage level.

Claim 8 and 14-15 are rejected for being dependent upon the rejected claims noted above.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

Art Unit: 2816

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

4. Claims 7 and 13-14, as understood, are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by the Schultz et al reference (U.S. Patent 5,164,659).

Schultz discloses in figure 1 an apparatus comprising a comparator 22 to compare voltage of the output signal (node 16) to the reference voltage VREF; a pull down transistor 24 coupled to an output of the comparator for fixing a minimum voltage of the output signal to a voltage approximately equal to the reference voltage as required by claim 7. It is noted that limitation “pulse width of the output signal varies in proportion to changes in the reference voltage and the comparator comprises a slew rate and/or gain which is predetermined to preclude a voltage of the output signal from being less than the reference voltage” is seen as a result of the structure recited in claim.

As to claim 13, it is inherent that the source-to-drain current path is maintained when the output signal is approximately higher or equal to the reference voltage since the pull down transistor is ON when voltage at positive terminal is approximately higher or equal to the voltage at negative terminal of the comparator.

As to claim 14, limitation “an output voltage from the comparator will not go below a threshold voltage of the pull down transistor” has the same meaning as “comparator comprises a slew rate and/or gain which is predetermined to preclude a voltage of the output signal from being less than the reference voltage” as noted above. Therefore, it is rejected for the same reason noted above.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

5. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

6. Claim 15 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over the Schultz et al reference (U.S. Patent 6,164,659).

Schultz does not disclose an optical signal transmitter coupled to receive the output signal as required by claim. However, it is obvious that the apparatus recited in claim 7 is intended to be employed in various application. And the output of the apparatus is seen as an intermediate step which provides a suitable signal for further processing. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one skilled in the art to provide the output of the apparatus to an optical signal transmitter or any other electrical device, for that matter, which requires a stable input signal. And any particular electrical device connected to the output of the apparatus is seen as "intended use" since it does not change the operational characteristics of the apparatus.

Allowable Subject Matter

7. Claims 1-5 are allowed.

8. Claim 8 is objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Art Unit: 2816

9. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: the prior art of record fails to disclose, among other things, a duty cycle that varies in proportion to changes in the reference voltage.

Conclusion

10. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
